

Government Advertisement: 'WorkChoices' Industrial Relations Campaign

Television Advertisement Two, Broadcast October 9 2005

Male voice over:

Australia has over 130 different pieces of industrial relations legislation, over 4000 different awards and six different workplace relations systems.

Too many rules and regulations make it hard for many employees and employers to get together and reach agreement.

We need to do more to remove those complex and costly rules and regulations in some parts of the current system that continue to hold Australia back.

That's why the Australian government is introducing Workchoices.

Workchoices moves us towards one simpler, fairer, national workplace system. It'll make it simpler for employees and employers to get together, talk and work out the workplace arrangements that best suit them.

There'll be more information coming in this Wednesday's newspapers.

Or you can call 1800 025 239 for your free copy of the Workchoices booklet or visit the Workchoices website.

Female voice over:

Authorised by the Australian Government, Canberra.

Source: Transcribed from television advertisement, broadcast Channel Nine, October 9 2005.